A recent writer said that none of Adam's grandchildren of the paternal way of thinking would ever have undertaken to support a lady if he had only seen her when her head was bristling with curl papers, her nose shiny with cold cream and her attire a wrapper that was not on speaking terms with the washtub. This is easily disposed of, Friend Husband. Provide her with a boudoir cap and mask, if you've learned her tendencies too late, and hire a washerwoman. You may object that you can't afford to. Oh, well, what's the dif-
